Explain how the example proves the statement is correct/incorrect On the one hand, I agree with the statement that the threat of invasion was Elizabeth's main threat when she became queen in 1558. For example there was the threat of invasion from France and Spain More specifically, Mary Queen of Scots was married to the French King and there were French soldiers in Scotland who might invade. +Another example was that King Philip of Spain had promised to protect all Europe's Catholics if Elizabeth made England protestant he might invade. This was a threat because France and Spain were both very powerful countries and an invasion could result I Elizabeth being overthrown and even killed. This proves the statement correct because Elizabeth faced the threat of invasion from two countries; these countries were more powerful than England and had a lot to gain by invading. <ul data-bbox="418 942 1804 1016" style="list-style-type: none"> • 50%-Second paragraph. Describe how the example in the second bullet point agrees/disagrees with the statement. Use a factor to explain how the example proves the statement is correct/wrong On the other hand, I disagree with the statement, because there were other threats to Elizabeth in 1558 such as the legitimacy of her succession. For example because of her gender, her ability to be queen was questioned. More specifically, people had different views about gender in Tudor England, men were supposed to be in roles of power and Elizabeth as expected to marry quickly so that there would be a King to rule with her. Tis would have meant less power for her. +Another example is that Catholics questioned whether she was the legal heir to the throne. +More specifically the Pope had never approved Henry VIII's marriage to Anne Boleyn and so some Catholics viewed Elizabeth as a bastard and Mary Queen of Scots as the rightful heir. This was a threat because if people did not obey Elizabeth she could not rule effectively. This proves the statement wrong because people doubting her legitimacy to be queen was a very big threat because it might have led to people disobeying her orders and rebelling against her in England. <ul data-bbox="418 1478 1774 1551" style="list-style-type: none"> • 60% - Third paragraph. Use a factor to explain how the example proves the statement is correct/wrong Use the same structure to explain a third threat to Elizabeth in 1558 e.g. religions divisions OR economic problems. <ul data-bbox="418 1596 1828 1669" style="list-style-type: none"> • 70%+ - Fourth paragraph. Conclusion. Describe if you totally agree, partially agree or totally disagree with the statement. Explain why you have reached this conclusion. In conclusion, I partially with this statement because the threat of invasion was a significant threat because France and Spain were much more powerful than England at the time. However, Elizabeth also faced significant threats at home, which needed to be dealt with urgently. For example, she had to make sure that people regarded her succession as legitimate so she could rule without rebellions and she had to solve the religious problems that had divided her kingdom since 1534 when her father broke from Rome. It could be argued that the domestic threats were greater, because they had to be dealt with first. Elizabeth had to secure her reign in England before dealing with foreign threats.	Q1 The threat of invasion was Elizabeth's main problem when she became queen in 1558.' For example, any Puritans who criticised Elizabeth were dealt with harshly. More specifically, a Puritan called John Stubbs published a pamphlet criticising Elizabeth and was punished by having his hand cut off. These meant that the Puritans were not a threat to Elizabeth because they knew they would be dealt with harshly which deterred Puritans from acting against Elizabeth. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 50% second paragraph. More specifically, some Puritans believed that there should be no bishops and the local community should decide how organise each church. While another group believed, there should be bishops. This meant that the Puritans were not a threat to Elizabeth because they did not work together to challenge her, so their challenge was less effective. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 60%. Third paragraph. Describe an example from your own knowledge.
